Profile

An Economics graduate with a strong interest in applied research and leveraging data to inform evidence-based decision-making. Over the past year, I have worked in the non-profit sector with World Vision Bangladesh, applying analytical skills to support field-based data collection, program reporting and cross-functional coordination across multiple development sectors. My experience includes managing qualitative data, supervising field facilitators and contributing to evidence-based program implementation. I am eager to further develop my expertise in quantitative research methods and data analysis to deliver impactful insights in academia and policymaking.
