PROFESSIONAL SUMMARY

I am a motivated and academically driven Economics student at Southeast University, currently completing my final semester with a CGPA of 3.88. I have a strong academic foundation in economic theory, economic development, financial economics, environmental economics, research methodology, and applied economic analysis. I am particularly interested in using economic knowledge and data-driven approaches to understand real-world economic and policy challenges. Alongside my academic journey, I have developed practical experience in leadership, event management, academic competitions, communication, and teamwork. I currently serve as Publication Secretary of Young Economists of Southeast University and have served as Head of Organizer of BETA (Budget Analysis & Economic Assessment) 2026, where I contributed to organizing a budget-focused academic competition centered on economic assessment and fiscal policy. I also worked as an Organizer of ENACT (Economic Analysis & Case Tournament) 2026, a national-level academic competition involving economic analysis, case studies, policy formulation, and presentations. My involvement in debating and academic event management has strengthened my public speaking, coordination, problem-solving, stakeholder communication, and leadership skills. I also have an active interest in economic research, particularly in environmental quality, financial development, human development, economic growth, and policy analysis. As I begin my professional career, I seek opportunities to apply my academic knowledge in practical settings while developing stronger analytical, research, and professional skills. I am responsible, adaptable, detail-oriented, and committed to continuous learning, with a strong interest in contributing meaningfully to organizational and economic development.

CAREER OBJECTIVE

Motivated and analytical student seeking an internship opportunity to apply my skills in project coordination, research, and communication within a dynamic, international work environment. I aim to collaborate with cross-functional teams, support the planning and execution of projects, and contribute to developing clear standard operating procedures that improve productivity and quality. I am committed to following safety guidelines and maintaining a safe workplace. With strong English fluency and presentation skills, I bring fresh ideas and a willingness to learn, take direction, and handle operational and strategic tasks. I hope to gain practical industry experience while adding real value to project outcomes.
